PROJECTS

- MVC Tech Blog: Tech Blog is a Full stack app for developers who want to write and read about technical concepts, recent advancement, and new technologies. Using this blog allows users to share their coding knowledge with each other's by posting articles and commenting on other's posts. This app follows MVC paradigm in its architectural structure, using Handlebars.js as the templating language, Sequelize as the ORM, and the express-session npm package for authentication.
- Weather dashboard: An app to retrieve 5 days weather forecast of the location entered in the search bar. App run in the browser and features dynamically updated HTML and CSS. I used third party APIs from openweathermap.org to retrieve data. This app also uses localStorage to store any persistent data for later uses.
- Employee Tracker: A command-line application to manage a company's employee database. This app is using Node.js, Inquirer package to interact with the user, MySQL2 package to connect with MYSQL database and perform queries, and console.table package to print MYSQL rows to the console.
- Text Editor: A single page app that runs in the browser and meets PWA criteria. Additionally, it features several data persistence techniques that serve as redundancy in case one of the options is not supported by the browser. The application also functions offline. I use idb package, which is a lightweight wrapper around the indexedDB API.
- Team Generator: A Node.js command-line app that takes in information about employees on a software engineering team and generates an HTML page that displays summaries for each person. This app uses Inquirer package for collecting input, and Jest for running tests.
